

10.2A Teacher Key

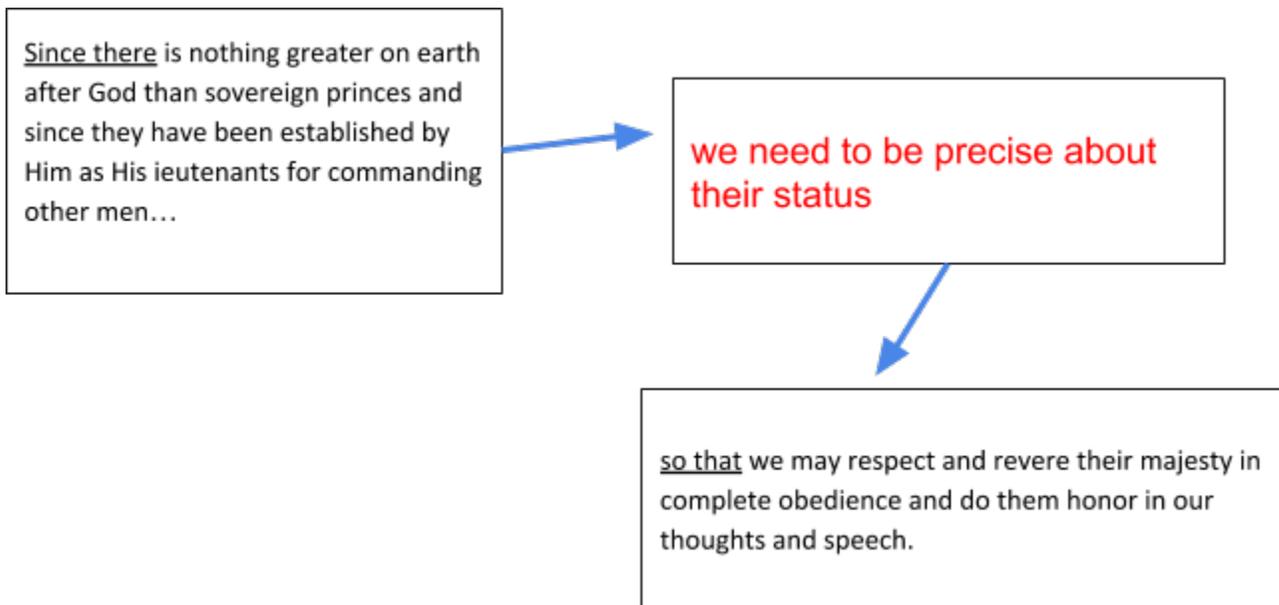

A.

Connector	Participant	Process	Who or What	Questions
Since there		is		What is the most valuable thing on earth? sovereign princes (after God) nothing greater on earth, after God
than	sovereign princes
and since	they [sovereign princes]	have been established		Who are “they” in this clause? sovereign princes
by	Him [God]			Who does “Him” and “His” refer to, and why are these words capitalized?
as	His [God’s] lieutenants for	commanding	other men	God, to show respect for God What is the relationship between God and “sovereign princes”? God is greatest, sovereign princes are God’s second-in-command
	we [the princes’ subjects]	need to be	precise	Who does “we” refer to? the princes’ subjects about	their [the princes’] status			Whose status do we need to be “precise about?” princes’ What is their status? They are at the top of the social hierarchy, answerable to no one but God.
so that	we [princes’ subjects]	may respect and revere	their [the princes’] majesty in complete obedience	Who is “we” in this section? the princes’ subjects and	(we)	do	them honor in our thoughts and in our speech.	Who does “their” and “them” refer to? princes What is the relationship between we and them? We are to obey, respect, revere and honor them.

-----	------	----	-----------------------------------------------	--------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

Text Genre Organization: This first paragraph includes text that establishes a cause and effect chain, with causal cues embedded within the text that signal to the reader the initial and subsequent causes.

1. In the first box, underline the two words that show the passage that follows is a cause.
2. In the last box, underline the two words that show the passage that follows is an effect.
3. Fill in the text that is missing from the passage in the middle box.

B. “...the first prerogative of a sovereign prince is to give law... ‘without the consent of any other, whether greater, equal, or below him.’”

Connector	Participant	Process	Who or what	Questions
	...the first prerogative of a sovereign prince	is to give	law	What legal rights does a sovereign prince have? to give law
without	the consent of any other

whether greater, equal, or below	him			Does the prince have to ask anyone for permission to exercise these rights? Why or why not? no, because it is his prerogative to make laws himself
----------------------------------	-----	--	--	------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------

C. "...the subject has no right of jurisdiction over his prince, on whom all power and authority to command depends."

Connector / Circumstance	Participant	Process	Who or What	Questions
	the subject	has	no right of jurisdiction	What power does "the subject" have?
over	his prince			none How is this different from the power of "his prince"?
on whom	all power and authority	to command depends		The power of the prince is total and unlimited, while the subject has no power.